Vegas Firm Launches ae3 Energy Alliance

Las Vegas Lawyer Trane, a commercial HVAC distributor in business 43 years, has launched ae3, which will serve as an alliance of locally owned energy service companies. According to Tom Lawyer, C.E.O. of Lawyer Trane, the objective is to provide energy, economic and environmental solutions to building owners and facility managers.

"For over 40 years, we've worked with education, government, industry, commercial real estate, healthcare, life sciences, resort and entertainment clients, and we take great pride in helping this city flourish," says Lawyer,

"With our established roots in the community, we have a major stake in its economic health."

As a founding member of ae3, Lawyer Trane says it will combine the strengths of a global network with the latest technology to develop proven sustainable energy, economic and environmental solutions for buildings.

"We know energy use," says Lawyer. Every project we are involved with must meet the standard of managing the energy needs of our clients, at a price they can afford, while assuring the comfort and safety of the people in their buildings."

He adds that ae3 boasts a network of industry experts that has a combined experience of more than 1,000 years and $5 billion in projects. Lawyer Trane is comprised of graduate engineers, LEED-accredited professionals and a group of seasoned professionals that provide guidance and strategic solutions to commercial design, installation, service and maintenance.
